OBJECTIVES

Hendricks Day School wanted to add a library, classrooms, and a television studio to their school. Because of their unique needs, several factors had to be considered such as flooring which could hold heavy shelves and books and wiring which had the ability to run a closed-circuit television show.

SOLUTIONS

Sunbelt created a building which consisted of a library, two classrooms, a working television studio, storage space, restrooms, and a wrap-around deck. The deck connected to a neighboring building so that the library was accessible to all. We designed a reinforced floor system and specially wired the building so that all classrooms could watch a broadcasted morning show which was filmed in the television studio.
